It's Time To Turn Things Around by Voting for Bills 5815 - 5819 and 5783

This committee, and the general body of law makers, including the governor have an opportunity to do just that. we the residents, and business owners alike have endured enough. It is time to turn the tide of house and car foreclosures of unrelenting gas and oil prices, outragious property taxes, and of course the reprehensible and punitive electric rates which as everyone knows are the highest in the country. Connecticut citizens and businesses are being forced to leave the state in record numbers like no other state in the Union. We cannot afford to live here any longer. Certainly not the young people who are just starting out., not the seniors who live on a fixed income, not the middle class who have vanished, not the poor even with some subsidies, but only the corporate rich who benefit from high energy costs, high electricity and high gas and oil. The small business owners like Ross and Roberts, a Stratford based business had to shut down recently like hundreds of others, laying off 60 works do to rising raw materials and rising electricity costs, exemplifies the deplorable economic conditions present today in this state.

Our state is becoming a desert, barren of good legislation and enforcement, absent of economic stimulus protection from unscrupulous mortgage lenders, safeguards for our health and safty and an energy policy that works for not against people. We cannot tolerate these conditions any longer. The well is dry. It is up to you to dam up the rivers and generate and regulate sustainable, renewable, domestically reasonable electricity that isn't manipulated by power brokers who reap the profits as do energy ceo. The attitude that it can't be done now is both politically incorrect and offensive.

If the Governor can dismantle the Department of Transportation in a few seconds as she called for in the state of the state address, why can't law makers dismantle the present DPUC and instead institute a Connecticut Energy Authority whose intent would be to ensure the cheapest rates, guarantee transparency of all transactions and bring back regulation for the financially exhausted citizens of Connecticut.
