Dear Karen-

I am writing to express my support of the public's right to continue to burn outdoor woodburning furnaces.

However, I am not convinced that turning this over to local health officials in determining a "public nuisance" is the best remedy. To me it appears to leave a lot of interpretation open to the towns and will not be enforced on a consistent basis. It is also troubling that the information coming out of the Attorney General's office is often misleading and inaccurate.

It is my hope that this issue can be resolved not on the basis of hysteria, but reasonable discussion.

Cordially,
