

Access to the land and open space is of critical importance to public welfare and quality of life. We need to protect our public minded institutions from lawsuits which hurt the public at large. When do individuals own the decisions they make. It is sad when individuals who have easy access to legal services can limit recreational opportunities so badly needed to improve the health of our society. Vikki Reski