

My concern is that American students are not getting a basic education in science, reading and American history. I don't agree that high school seniors can be dismissed earlier than regular dismissal time with the theory that they have a job to go to. Right now their job is their education. And, I would guess that most of them do not have a job to go to. Does our curriculum meet the standards of the Japanese and Chinese schools? So much of every town's budget is spent on schools, which I don't have a problem with as long as the money is well spent on students education. How many Vice Principals, Ass't Principals, secretaries to all are needed? We need to get back to basics.
