

Please let the American public have the RIGHT TO KNOW what's in our foodstuffs. How can it be that Stop and Shop, a Dutch owned foreign company, which cannot stock it's shelves with GMO's in the Netherlands, nor my town's most recent grocery store, German owned Aldi's, who also cannot stock GMO's in it's stores in Europe, is being allowed to sell products laced with GMO's unbeknownst to the American public. As I read the Republican American this morning, it struck me that all the political decisions for the most part that are made effect us on an intellectual level and they can become obsolete and changed over time. These GMO's once let into our enviroment and bodies will be colonizing the planet for millenia. Please stop this technology from being let into our bodies and enviroment any further. Label our food so that we have the right to exercise our freedom to choose products we spend our hard earned money on. Thank You, Brian Reardon
