

Hello,

I support the labeling of GMO/GE foods. We should have the right to know what we are eating. The companies that manufacture and sell GMO/GE foods do not publish their testing, and the FDA does not do independent testing (nor does it have the funds to do so). I do not want to eat foods that have not been fully tested for safety.

Also, the export market of US grain corn and soy beans has collapsed due to GMO/GE seed and cross-contamination. Importing countries do not want GMO/GE food for human consumption, even as foreign humanitarian aid. It makes national economic sense to label these products and separate them as much as possible. Perhaps we could then begin to recover our food export economy.

Sincerely signed,
Janice Kowal
