

I am writing this evening in opposition to any legislation that would enable individuals to grow Genetically Modified produce in a secretive manner. Any GMO's that are produced in CT should be identified by where they are being grown. They are very capable of contaminating gardens or farms that do not use genetically modified seeds; their spread would be particularly egregious to individuals growing organic produce. If I am shopping at the supermarket, I certainly would demand that genetically-modified produce be labeled. It seems like a simple right for consumers to know where their food is coming from. I would NEVER purchase GMO's. I don't care if it hurts Monsanto's bottom-line. What is happening here is that corporations want to make money at the expense of the health & welfare of CT's citizens. This is simply unacceptable.
