

I am writing you to help support the movement to allow hunting on Sunday's here in CT. Having moved here two years ago I've never completely understood the reasons why hunting is not allowed on Sundays, and I see it as a chance both the state, businesses, and hunters could all benefit from.

Most hunters I know cross state lines on Sundays to pursue hunting in states where it is allowed, sending revenue from licenses to bordering states. Has CT ever considered charging a premium on licenses for Sunday hunting?

In addition, hunters like myself spend quite a bit of money in other states buying gas, food, etc all because our own state doesn't permit hunting on that day.

Everyone would benefit... I get to enjoy my favorite pastime, business owners would benefit from the dollars I spend pursuing this pastime, and the state could benefit by charging a premium to licenses for a special "Sunday" license fee.
