

The Community Investment Fund for historic preservation should be seen as an investment in the economic development of the State of Connecticut as we know, which the Governor's own Connecticut still Revolutionary attests to, historic preservation is a key component of the visitor experience and, the quality of life for Connecticut residents. What's the point in spending millions of dollars marketing a product which now the Governor proposes to deplete. I am not disputing the importance of school lunches, but I am seriously questioning the decision-making strategy that is currently on the table.
