

To whom it may concern,

I strongly oppose turning an instructor lead Boating Safety program into an online course. I took this program to learn boating safety and found that the instructor provided insights you could not obtain from an online course. The training I received was done professionally and I took it various seriously.

You can't get similar training online and I strongly feel this legislation will create serious safety issues.

You need to keep boater safety an instructor lead training program and not tie it to anything else.

Christopher Bishop