

I have just been made aware that the State of Connecticut is proposing to introduce a bill whereby boaters' can get their "safe" boating license through the internet. I find it amazing that any individual could ever be considered proficient to handle any boat with just on-line training. I believe it is most important to continue to have hands on training for boating to keep it safe for everyone.

I STRONGLY oppose changing the regulations regarding boating safety training at this time.

Thank you.
