

I, can't believe that what happened in Newtown in December of 2012 that someone would propose a bill to allow someone to take a firearms course on line and have no hands on instructions. Why was this proposed under a boating course to be taken on line when gun safety has nothing to do with boat safety. Also, I don't agree that a boat safety course should be given on line. Who will answer the questions that students might have in regards to boat safety and where will they learn how to secure boats and tie various knots. This is an idiotic bill and whoever submitted this bill is an idiot. Maybe it's time for the legislature to come out and start meeting the people in person and listen to what we have to say. The governor and our two US Senators are calling for stricter gun laws and now someone wants to allow firearm training to be taken on line without any hands on instructions. Wake up in Hartford.

Sent

Respectfully,

Richard Zaczynski

9 Jewel St.

Enfieldschools, CT. 06082