

I strongly support a ban on forced shock therapy. While I don't support the use of forced drug therapy, I can understand how various laws were passed around that issue. But electroshock therapy has so many downsides and side effects that it would only be acceptable as a therapy if the person receiving it was fully informed of the consequences and of his or her own free will chose to undergo this treatment. But to forcibly subject an American citizen to this very risky treatment is completely unacceptable in a civilized community.

Sincerely

--

Lennard J. Davis
Distinguished Professor, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
Department of English
Department of Disability and Human Development
Department of Medical Education
Director, Project Biocultures
www.biocultures.org

Mailing Address:

Department of English (MC 162)
University of Illinois at Chicago
601 South Morgan Street
Chicago, Illinois 60607-7120
Office: UH 2020
Phone: 312 413 8910
Fax: 347-346-6619

e-mail: lendavis@uic.edu, lennard.davis@gmail.com

Website: www.lennarddavis.com

Obsession: A History--website:

<http://www.press.uchicago.edu/presssite/metadata.epl?mode=synopsis&bookkey=283491>

Editor, Disability Studies Reader, Fourth

Edition <http://www.routledge.com/books/details/9780415630511/>

Editor, Routledge Series Integrating Science and Culture

http://www.routledge.com/books/series/just_the_factsand_more_JUSTFACT/