

I stand with Newtown and I support stronger gun legislation in our state and country.

I stand with the state-wide data showing strong support for restrictions and ban of machines that are nothing less than weapons of mass destruction. The evidence is there (despite the NRA and congress stopping the research) showing the more restrictions are in the best interest of the community. I also strongly disagree that we can hide behind mental illness. Even sane people have a breaking point, which is why suicide by guns is such an issue. Did you know that 85% of people who unsuccessfully attempt suicide never try again?

We need a national data base, we need all guns to be registered, we need the right to own a gun immediately removed if the gun is used illegally by said owner and we need these things to happen now. The CT effect is not going away!
