My family and I are vehemently opposed to the prospect of tolls being inserted on Connecticut borders. We travel to New York every day for work and to visit relatives and such a toll would reap havoc on our already strained household budget. It already takes my husband and daughter much longer to get home from work due to constant traffic, and tolls would cause even more traffic jams. This is a terrible idea and should never be a consideration by our gov't officials. If this takes place, we will consider relocating out of CT.
