

Our names are Thomas Turner and Jill Turner. Property owners of 89 Rockville Road, Broad Brook, CT 06016.

We built our house in 2005 at which time North Central had approved the lot, septic and the well. The city water connection ended approximately 500 feet from our property. We pulled a permit to have the well drilled and at which point, North Central stated that there might be a high possibility of high contamination. They stalled for the well permit while they investigated the possibility of having city water run to the property. After some time, they approved the well to be dug. The well did indeed come back as contaminated. At that point, knowing that the well would possibly come back contaminated, North central, aka the water company should have looked into the feasibility of running the water connection down the street to our property. Our property was the last well dug on our street as newer construction was forced to hook up to city water. We would appreciate the opportunity to hook up to city water.
