My name is Arthur Lampron,

I am 56 years old. I live in northwest Connecticut. I have lived in this state my whole life. In my town Winchester, anyone that knows me knows my reputation for taking care of my vehicles. This past October I left for work as I have many days in the last 29 years. Said have a nice day to a neighbor at the bus stop. Soon after that I was headed down Rte. 263 and realized I had no brakes. That is not a good thing on a steep hill early in the morning when you are not ready for it. To make a long story short I brought my 2006 Silverado which I thought was in excellent condition to my local shop. I was informed that I needed my brake lines replaced. They were rotting out. I had lost the majority of my brake fluid coming down the hill. I have never on any of my vehicles have replaces a brake line. When I spoke to the mechanic he said that he can't keep brake line material in stock. He was just finishing up a vehicle the day I brought mine in.
