I had to do extensive brake job on my Prius . And the dealer Litchfield Toyota told me that many people gas to do it because of the chemicals that states and towns are using to treat the roads for snow. I think state should take that into account when it looks at economics of road treatment alternatives. State and towns should not transfer their cost on citizens and the environment. When cars do not last as long it is environment problem as well.
Luckily more and more cars are made of plastic otherwise rusty bodies can fill the junk yards.
