Especially now with the state operating at a budget surplus, there do not appear to be the need to have funds that should be used for our roads to go elsewhere.

I commute each day from Bristol to E. Hartford and use a lot of gas throughout the year. If there is a surplus from the gas tax, reduce the tax so that the residents of Connecticut don't have to keep spending so much.

Cost of living keeps rising and employers are not giving out raises to keep up with this. Give the people of Connecticut some relief on the gas tax if it not all needed.
