

Hello. The proposed teacher evaluation plan should not be voted into practice for numerous reasons. First and foremost, it takes away from teaching time. The amount of time it takes to download, upload, etc. for documentation is time consuming.

Administrators are scripting instead of building curriculum and leading their schools.

It is increasing the amount of time in assessment and again taking away from teaching.

What we need is a discussion about the direction of our nation and then how schools can support our national goals. Please do not use this evaluation plan to make it look like education is behind the ills of society. Let teachers come up with a better plan. And, let teachers design the measurements used to assess student progress.

Judith E. Leary, M.S. CCC/SLP