

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am a lifelong Connecticut resident and also a hunter. It has come to my attention there is a proposal for Sunday hunting in this state. I fully support this effort for several reasons. In a time when residents are being financially squeezed by taxes and increased costs, it is very important to offer more opportunities for residents to enjoy leisure time activities. As a taxpayer I feel pressure to make difficult decisions on the one weekend day off from my full time job that I can hunt. My choices during the hunting season involve following my passion and enjoying the outdoors or working more hours to make money to support my family in a state that continues to raise taxes and ignore the financial strains of its citizens. Sunday hunting would allow myself and many other hard working and law abiding sportsmen the opportunity to pursue their passion in the outdoors as well as provide for their family in an increasingly expensive state. Thank you for your consideration of the bill.

Sincerely,

Timothy McMahon
