I am writing this in reference to the question of programs and assistance to young adults with Autism.

There shouldn't be any question as to whether we have programs to help. We have programs for people with no disabilities, we feed them, cloth them and pay all their bills, and the state of Connecticut needs to discuss if we should have programs to help people with disabilities. I think that any one there that doesn't want to help shouldn't there. Our tax dollars go for a lot of programs, that shouldn't even be in existence.

Yes, we need to help those that can't help themselves thru no fault of their own.

Thank you for taking the time to read this,
