Subject: Raised Bill 7015

No religious or political dogma must be allowed to trump the personal choice of a sane individual who is unavoidably suffering to no avail as a result of terminal illness. Opposing this bill is nothing short of arrogance in attempting to prevent compassionate and pragmatic relief from inescapable suffering.

Nobody has the right to intervene in the decision-making of a mentally competent person choosing to accelerate the outcome of a terminal condition. Advocating any such intervention or prohibition is to allow irrational bias and preconception to triumph over human compassion.
