If this is what "no appetite for more gun control" (to quote Governor Malloy) looks like, I'd hate to see what an appetite for more gun control is. Once again, my CT lawmakers are picking on the wrong people. This "show me your papers" bill is like stop and frisk on steroids. The bill perfectly defines the mindset of the CT government with regards to law abiding gun owners; that they are morally equivalent to criminals. If the elected officials of my government could just for once focus on stopping the real criminals, places like New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford and the rest of the state would be safer. Instead, they choose to waste their time and taxpayer money passing laws that are solutions looking for problems. Contrary to what my state government seems to believe, making good people helpless doesn't make bad people harmless. It's time stop this nonsense and get back to work.

Sincerely,
Jack Kavanaugh
