Tolls on I-95 are very dangerous for travelers now for the same reason they were removed many years ago: The traffic accidents and their frequency that occurred were staggering, especially in bad weather because vehicles, especially trucks, could not slow down and stop in time to pay. We may have electronic transmissions now, but all vehicles run the risk of being involved in a collision. It also creates monumental traffic tie-ups and too much congestion on the Post Road. It is a very bad and dangerous idea.
