

It is my observation that when executives in government are unwilling to make difficult decisions, their solution is to spend money. I view the suggestion for placing tolls on Connecticut roads is another example of searching for the easy way out. The tax level in Connecticut is too high, and budget cuts are necessary. Please do not add another tax. Gene Creighton, 54 Cromwell Place, Old Saybrook, CT 06475