

To Whom It May Concern;

I have incorporated within one of the course offered introduction to programming. This has inspired students to be creative, try new things, and come up with original ideas. When students are given permission to make mistakes as they program, they persevere and develop critical thinking and problem solving skills through collaboration that empower them to become independent thinkers and innovators. This will lead to productive and contributing members to our communities.

Fred Borne

Computer Technology
Ansonia Middle School