To whom it may concern:

I am writing in regards to my concerns about "Bill 7015". I strongly oppose this bill and what it stands for.

A human being should not be treated the same as a dog to be put down. Life is sacred and ending it prematurely for any reason is a tragedy that should be avoided at any cost. We question why a healthy person would commit suicide, this should not be any different. None of us live forever, but our lives are a gift, however long or short they may be. We should live every moment, grateful for the breath we have until it is our last. When we take our last breath should be up to God, not to us. We should never give up. It is not our place to take a man or woman's life into our own hands to end it.

Other things that should be considered: What if the doctor's were wrong about a patient's prognosis? What if there was a chance the patient could recover (in spite of the doctor's predictions)? Or live longer than the doctors predicted? Doctors are human and they make mistakes. I don't think this kind of thing is something that should be put into their hands. They could be wrong, and how do they live with themselves, knowing that they "legally" ended someone else's life? Legalizing something does not make it morally right.

Thank you for your time.

Best Regards,

Kristy Huizinga.
