Well here we go again.
People want to be able to commit suicide.

I was so glad that the bill didn't get out of committee last year
But we both know there are a certain few who will keep coming back, until they get their way.
Well I hope that they don't get their way this year or never.

As you know I honestly truly believe it's against God laws.

Who are we to tell God that we know better than him, when it's time it's die?

We have pains all through our lives, what hurts more the losing your spouse dies after 50 years.

Few years ago my mother was suffering with cancer.
When I went and visited her she begged me to pray to God to take her.

I did pray for her, and in three weeks God decided it was time to take her home.

It's hurts and hurts a lot.
But committing suicide is not the answer.

God knows when it's time to die.
So I ask you to vote against if it comes out of committee.
