Subject: Re:Bill 7015

It appears that the intent is to facilitate the end life has been become more important than life itself. The care of the sick and the practice of medicine have always focused on life. To make the ending of life the objective is a change that should not be made. The proposed legislation is a dangerous solution to the problem of who should live and who should not. Please consider the gravity of choosing to end a life of anyone deemed too ill or too incapacitated. The definitions of too ill or too incapacitated are too easily changed.

Please reconsider the consequences of the bill.

Respectfully,
Mr. & Mrs. Lorenzo Messina
