

We live in western Greenwich, the poor end of town on the Port Chester, NY border- we do not want the tolls to return, we cannot afford them.

It is completely unfair to think that every time we want to go to NY state to shop, just across the border from Connecticut that we must pay a toll to do this. Most of you law makers live where you will not travel across a border, and have the burden of paying a toll for a simple outing. You will make Connecticut a prison for residents and completely unappealing for people traveling to and through this state.

Stop this now.

Here's a suggestion:

Instead of reducing the price of alcohol, increase it to get the revenue you think you must have from tolls.

This is an unfair, a ridiculous answer to raising money for this state.

Control your spending instead.
