

To whom it may concern,

As Danbury residents, of which one of us works in Westchester County, as well as having 5 different family members who live within 30 minutes of the NY boarder we are deeply upset about this proposed tax. The cost of the toll as well as the traffic it will generate will make living in Connecticut less than desirable. It really disturbs us that our government officials who claim they are for the people would even consider imposing such an act as this. It is also upsetting that for some reason we need to find ways to generate more money for the state. Where is our money going that was already designated for the road ways? It seems we are paying double for this. We are also wondering what this will do for the smaller residential neighborhoods who most likely see more traffic from people trying to avoid the tolls/traffic.

We thought the idea was to make Connecticut more attractive for people to want to move here. We don't think this is the way to go. Please, reconsider making this terrible mistake!

Sincerely,
Todd and Karin Sterling
