

CT needs to support community shared solar and move away from monopoly controlled profitability for the distribution industry. We are being left in the dust by MA and NY, both using innovative measures to transition to a different way of doing business.

I understand that limiting the time frame to 15 yrs will kill any effort to offer shared solar because investors, developers and installers will not be able to recoup their expenses in that time frame.

Please stop delaying this important transition to alternative energy generation and community sharing in the benefits from solar energy. As you are probably well aware, New Haven residents have been paying for energy efficiency and alternative energy initiatives for years but have not reaped the benefits because of all of the barriers built into the system that excludes their participation.

Honestly, it is past time to fix this problem -rising sea level, polar ice melting, more severe weather - why can't we do everything possible to transition away from fossil fuel power generation?

Sincerely,
Lynne Bonnett
