

Dave Gliserman
dgliserman@gmail.com
Connecticut 06478

Most likely, the carwash operators will bear the burden of this tax to appease customers. Therefore the application of it will be wildly uneven, falling on only a handful of payers. For all the trouble and inconvenience of a tax that will fall on a tiny segment of the population what, exactly, does the state expect to gain? I'm betting not much.