Many car wash places are a small business operation and coin operated self service. It will be an extreme burden on the owner to change the coin machines and an additional accounting function to keep trace of and report that tax. I am sure the car wash business will be reduced because I, for one, will not use that service as often.

I was amazed when I read Bill 337 as to how many things are taxed, is there anything let that is not taxed? maybe breathing?

When will the State operate like a family and a business that has to budget and live within the budget? State spending is out of control, if politicians need help balancing the budget ask people that know how to do it like a family person and Joe on the street to help.

One way that would definitely help is to pass a bill that states that when a politician leaves office if the State debt is equal to or more than when he took office then he gets no benefits. Plus that would probably generate self generating term limits.
