

I used See Click Fix to report a badly timed light at an intersection in New Haven. The light was so long that people (including me) would ignore the red light after about 5 minutes. One day I saw a school bus go through the red light—even the most law-abiding driver isn't going to wait forever for a light to change. People must have thought it was broken.

After I reported it, the city fixed the light. We're safer because of See Click Fix.
