I have been working in child care for almost 10 years. While working at a school readiness program and naeyc accredited program I have received my associates degree to comply with qsm requirements. I am currently taking courses for my bachelor's in child studies while being a full time employee and a mom. I have continued my education so that I can provide quality care and education as well as meeting state requirements. However receiving these qualifications should not only benefit the program I work for but also compensate me and the support I need for my family and future.
