

Wildlife should be protected and there is less and less places for wild life to live in peace. Also the more parks there are the more people can get in tune with nature even small parks in the city can help people and animals alike in most cities people lose touch with the feeling of nature and how beautiful it can be along with how relaxing it becomes.

Rebecca Durinik, Haddam