It is my understanding that most seniors live on the funds provided by Social Security only, without the benefit of a pension or a 401K plan. With the costs of just basic necessities always on the rise, and no cost of living increase this year on Social Security, it becomes more of a challenge for seniors to provide for themselves. Most of these people have worked all of their lives and have finally reached retirement age only to find that they are unable to enjoy even going to a movie because there is simply no money available. They have paid their taxes and their Social Security. Now, again, they are being asked to pay more taxes because they are eligible for Social Security, a program that they have been paying into all of their working life. It almost seems as though they are being taxed twice. I feel that they have already paid into the system and that there should be no taxes on the funds they receive from Social Security.
