I'm in full support of eliminating the tax on Social Security, which I am not collecting. Being tax friendly to Seniors is one method to help keep them from leaving the State. Southern States are being tax friendly to Seniors to entice them to relocate, so why not Connecticut. Consider which is better to have In CT, young working adults who make less & pay less taxes or older working Seniors with higher paying jobs/professions & retirees who have investments,401K's,IRA's,etc, which produce a higher rate of tax revenue? Also consider why so many have left Connecticut, is it because of Tax's? Think about it.
I retired last June & unless something changes in this State, I'll be following leaving as well!
