Taxing the social security income that resident taxpayers have been paying into their whole working lives is not only unfair and double taxation, but a feeble attempt to shore up the continuing drain on the last remaining support for Connecticut's retired citizens who have mistakenly placed their trust in our governing legislators. This again emphasizes the new definition of insanity: "To place in power politicians who can create laws which they are not subject to." Apparently there is no bottom to the well of gall from which our politicians can continue to draw.
