Having come through several difficult times in trying to save for retirement before having my job outsourced to India, Social Security should be one predictable leg that I can count on as I have had to retire. I had a good job and paid taxes on my income for 39 years counting on retiring and enjoying the life my wife and I worked and saved hard for. We paid our bills, kept our family safe and secure, got educated and have always helped neighbors, but now openly discuss with our friends, neighbors, children and colleagues that we know that we are paying taxes on income we more than ever dependent upon to help support programs and people that are not crafted with our same values of self reliance and personal responsibility. Other states do not tax this income and this state's lack of financial prowess is causing a search for more and more targets for taxation.
