

Phillip Lauria
phil@retailnxi.com
Wilton, Connecticut 06897

There should be no tax on Social Security. It is a tax to begin with. A tax on earnings and a tax on the employer who one works for. in the end the benefit is a compilation of monies garnered from ones income/paycheck over time. SO the rationale is one is getting back what they have contributed over the years.

If the government wants to then they should set it up as if it is a ROTH IRA plan. Furthermore the Federal government has used these monies over time to fund other programs and NOT what it was intended for which is 100% to a pensioner.

Get rid of the tax on social security benefits.