

John Mastro
john@specialtycoffeeusa.com
Wilton, Connecticut 06897

I think it is a sad state of affairs that the state is taxing social security benefits on its elderly and needy population. Social security is meant to help people have enough money to retire and to help those who are disabled. The state, in taxing those recipients, is worsening their situation and undoubtedly encouraging people to leave the state.