

Lucy McConologue
llucie@att.net
Seymour, Connecticut 06483

I believe that taxing Social Security income is a double taxation since individuals paid Social Security based on their income which was also taxed by the State of Connecticut. The tax creates an additional hardship on individuals who are struggling to live on their limited income and are expected to pay an additional income tax for out of control spending by the State.