I agree that the Connecticut income tax on social security income should be eliminated. I am an individual who, since my husband left me in 2003 and took most of the funds we had set aside for our retirement in the divorce, is now faced with living on social security and a very small pension. This was not the plan when we set up our accounts for our financial future, but it is my reality now. Eliminating the state income tax on social security income would be a tremendous help to me and I know to many others in Connecticut.
