I believe it is the responsibility of Hartford CT for they were the community and the team owner for they were the ones wanting to move from New Britain to Hartford to step up and meet their obligation which they created. The Rock Cats were thieving in New Britain but the owners wanted more with very little if any of their money in the game. Hartford CT should have realized from the beginning that they were in no shape financially to take on such a responsibility.

The project was not well thought out very well from the beginning and greed was and is the main factor for this problem. CT should not bail Hartford CT or the owners out.
