Testimony

Yes I would agree on doing this but the only stipulation is DMV would have to figure out how many heads it will reduce. If they don't cut heads it will just cost the taxpayers more money.

No wild estimates, well about X % then make sure they say how many people they have and broken by departments and management. Then we can track just what's happening and hold their feet to the fire otherwise they talk in generalities and are never held accountable and we just add more to the size of the government.

I'm a business man who has worked for many major companies and this how it works.
