I support

HB 6329 AN ACT CONCERNING HYDRAULIC FRACTURING WASTE IN CONNECTICUT

The well on my own property produces water that is as good tasting as any I have ever had. Risking that pure water is completely unreasonable to me.

If fracking waste were to come into Connecticut presumably it would benefit some small number of people financially and put at risk some large number of people who receive no benefit. Water ways have been polluted in other areas and trucks do occasionally spill their contents. Are the people who stand to benefit going to buy insurance to cover all remediation costs of any potential spill or environmental damage (if it could even be done)? If not the State of Connecticut will effectively be saying to people who are bystanders you take on the risk.

I don't see any benefit to the State of Connecticut in allowing fracking waste into the state.

Finally if someone wants to argue the waste is 'not that toxic', I would ask, why is a company willing to pay to ship this waste to another state rather than disposing of it locally.
