

I am writing in support of the National Popular Vote Bill (Senate bill SB9 and House bill HB5434) coming before our state legislature. Very simply stated, it seems only fair that every citizen's vote should count equally. In the same sense that all states have two U.S. Senators elected by popular state vote, why should the President be elected any other way? The need for the electoral college is outdated and, more importantly, does not always represent the voice of the majority; i.e., the election of George Bush and Donald Trump.

Respectfully,
Linda Levene
860-767-7263